Challenges Dionne To Prove Charges

By ARTHUR J. QUINN
Copyright, 1933, by the Boston Evening American. All rights reserved.
Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, country doctor who presided at the birth of the Dionne Quintuplets, today, in an exclusive telephone interview with the Boston Evening American, openly challenged Olivia Dionne and Attorney Henri St. Jacques, of Ottawa, to prove their charges that he is wasting the babies' money and alienating their affections from their parents.
Jealousy of two former women employees of Dafoe Hospital, whom he discharged for insubordination, was declared by the internationally known physician as the basis of the legal slur on his integrity.
He said the women, one a former nurse and the other an ex-teacher of the quins, had carried their resentment against him to "Papa" Dionne and had inspired the court action.
"The ladies are mad because I told them they were through," Dr. Dafoe said in explanation.

Lawyer to Seek Jobs Back For Nurse and Former Teacher

St. Jacques in his charges said he would seek reinstatement of Jacqueline Noel, the nurse, and Claire Tremblay, former teacher in the children's nursery.
Meanwhile, Attorney-General Gordon Conant of Ontario said he would take no action on the request for a judicial inquiry until he had studied a recent report made by Percy D. Wilson, official guardian.
According to Conant, Wilson made an investigation at the request of Dr. Dafoe and sent the report to the attorney-general's office this week.
Leaving his bed to answer the telephone, Dr. Dafoe revealed that the first he had heard of the latest charges brought by "Papa" Dionne, father of the famous quins, was from the Boston Evening American reporter.
The noted Callander, Ontario, physician indicated by his tone that his patience was finally exhausted by his numerous disputes with the parents of the children. This is the first time he has openly criticized "Papa" Dionne.
"What, some more new charges against me?" asked the doctor.
"Well I should be used to them by now. What do you want to know?"
In a declaration containing five separate complaints against Dr. Dafoe, Attorney St. Jacques charged that the health of the quintuplets had been impaired to satisfy Dr. Dafoe's determination to please tourists, that they had been forced to learn English before mastering French and that Dr. Dafoe had been guilty of

Rain Halts Sox, Bees Games

Inclement weather throughout the East gave both Boston baseball teams a day of rest as officials decided to postpone the tilt until later in the season.

The Bees were scheduled to open their home season at the Hive with the Philadelphia Phillies, while the Sox, victors in three of the four games with the world's champion New York Yankees, were on the road for the first time in Philadelphia, where they were set to meet Connie Mack's Athletics.

The postponed battles will be played as part of doubleheaders.

British War Chief In Rome to See Duce

ROME, April 22 (AP)—Lord Gort, British war chief, is expected to arrive in Rome today to see Benito Mussolini.

The message proposing the conclusion of tax-exempt bonds and the appointment of a board of directors to exempt state and federal securities will be sent to Congress on Monday, the President said.

Roosevelt also disclosed that sometime this summer he might call a general conference of state, municipal and federal officials to discuss overlapping taxation.

Landon Calls Halt to Day's Spending

TOPPER, Kan., April 22 (AP)—Alfred M. Landon called upon "an articulate citizenry" today to make it clear to Congress that "this huge appropriation" proposed in President Roosevelt's recovery program must be met by adequate tax provisions.
The 1933 Republican presidential nominee, in an address prepared for delivery to the Optimist Club, said the President's proposal included the "period of uncertainty" as to the government's fiscal policy.
"We are again upon an infelicitous course," he said.
The speech was read by State Supreme Court Justice Hugh T. Wedell after Landon was called to Kansas City by the illness of his father, John M. Landon.

"If every time there is a revision in business, the only way to get a government out of it is to further huge expenditure program to be applied on top of expenditures already too great, then we shall go bankrupt," the address continued.

"If the government spends money, it must collect revenue to match the expenditures. It is not yet too late to pull up and save ourselves and our honest debts. We can pay the public debt of this country."

Ocean Cruise Planned Next Week by President

WASHINGTON, April 22 (IN)—President Roosevelt announced today he hopes to be able to get away from Washington next Friday for a brief cruise in the battleship USS Oregon, which is being repaired at the Naval Yard in Philadelphia.
The executive said his destination would be "the Atlantic Ocean and back," that he would be gone four or five days, and that his primary desire was to get away as possible from the White House.
The two objects of his hoped-for cruise beginning next Friday are to see the ship and to see the people of the coast of South America, but he did not finally commit himself to the board the White House yacht. Locks Self in Building, Misses 2 Calls

When Patrolman Walter T. Wei of Waltham discovered the rear of a Mokey street offing being open early today, he decided to investigate and then casually leave the front entrance.

Then this is what happened. He found one in the building. He found that he needed a key to open the front door.

He became imprisoned because the lock was on the outside of a door that led to the rear entrance and snapped shut.

He couldn't reach a phone. He missed two fully calls.

He was rescued by Arthur Saben, a patrolman at the rear entrance, who climbed down a ladder from a first-floor window.

Dr. Hyde Accepts Offer of Eire

DUBLIN, April 22 (AP)—Dr. Douglas Hyde, poet, historian and retired university professor, today accepted the nomination of Ireland's two largest political parties to run for President in the May 31 election.

All Eire (the former Irish Free State) halting the Irish selection of Dr. Hyde, by Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's Fianna Fail, and the opposition, Fine Gael. The two parties hoped to avoid an election contest.

"I feel very touched at this nomination," said Dr. Hyde, "and I am very glad to agree to my selection," said the 70-year-old nominee.

The election will be the first time since the birth of the Republic, an ardent Nationalist, son of a Protestant clergyman and a self-proclaimed, retired a professor of modern Irish in the National University of Ireland in 1922.

Questioned about a possible election in Chile, Dr. Hyde said that for four years he has wanted to visit the west coast of South America, but he did not finally commit himself to the board the White House yacht. Hunt Blonde 'Miss X' in Dolan Case

A mysterious "Miss X" entered the Dolan contention today. An attractive blonde, according to Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle, she was sought by police as a witness in the proceedings.

At the same time, a new development in the rapidly-moving court drama was enacted when Harold Simpson, Boston broker named in the contempt petition, was ordered to appear in court today.

Simpson, who lives in College road, Brookline, gave himself up to Deputy Sheriff Daniel A. Whelan at the courthouse. Accompanied by his lawyer, Robert Robinson, he was taken immediately before Chief Justice John F. Higgins for arraignment.

Coogan Suit Postponed Until May 2

Receiver Ordered To Complete Inventory

LOS ANGELES, April 22 (AP)—Court action on Jackie Coogan's suit for a $4,000,000 account by his mother and stepfather was postponed today until May 2.

Superior Court Judge Kenneth Wilson ordered that the temporary receivership be continued, so that an inventory may be completed by May 2.

He also continued the temporary order restraining Coogan's mother and her second husband, Arthur L. Bernstein, from disposing of property until further order.

The court gave Mrs. Bernstein permission to make changes in a divorce's settlement so that they may receive the money when they become of age, was proposed today by Superior Judge Ben B. Land.

Noted as a former Denver juvenile court judge, and author of many laws affecting child welfare, Judge Landley declined the present situation in California that has made necessary such litigation as Coogan's mother seeks to recover his vast movie earnings.

Stocks Up $1.55, Led by Rails

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—Stocks advanced, regarded as moderately active buying today with gains running from 1/8 to 1 1/2 in the leaders.

Rails, which had been a lagged group, were well up with top leaders on buying which trading circles attributed to Washington bills of possible emergency railroad legislation at this session of Congress.

Steady activities in other parts of the market appeared to have been induced by a buoyant tone under the leadership of U. S. government securities.

Strength of the bond market was based on the federal government credit expansion program, which some viewed as a forerunner of business recovery.

James Watt Medal Given Henry Ford

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—The British Institution of Mechanical Engineers today announced the award of its James Watt International Medal to Henry Ford.

The medal is awarded every second year to commemorate the birth of James Watt, inventor of the steam engine. It is considered one of the highest honors in engineering.

Animal Ship on Rocks

Fifty persons and a cargo of wild animals and birds from India's jungles were in peril today after the British steamer, City of Salisbury, ground hard up on Graves Light reef in the fog off Wintthrop.

Three Coast Guard boats and five tugs of the Boston Tow Boat Company were rushed to the aid of the vessel, which radiated for help after striking in mid-ocean.

The City of Salisbury, due to dock at Pier 2, East Boston, this afternoon, was "kissed and fast" on South Point, formerly known as Southport, Graves, Captain H. Reany, Graves Light keeper, told the Boston Evening American.

Many of the vessel were hauled to starboard, but still had free going in the fog.

At Point Allerton Coast Guard station a radio message had been picked up from the ship that was read as "sinking badly," but because of the fog, the going was thought to have been sent as "sinking bad."

From Point Allerton, a Coast Guard cutter and the five tugboats were in command of the relief boats being in command of the relief boats.

Lightship Keeper Reany said the fog was so thick that the freighter was grounded in a series of rock reefs and that the two Point Allerton Coast Guard boats, a Coast Guard cutter and the five tugboats were standing by.

There was little possibility that the steamer could be pulled off, however, before the high tide around 5 p.m.

The City of Salisbury is bringing her cargo of jungle denizens via Italian from California and Columbia.

Included in the consignment are three crates of deadly cobras, 18 huge pythons, eight cages of birds of brilliant plumage and 11 crates of small mammals.

WANT HIGH TIME

It had not been decided today just how to load the animals, birds and reptiles at Boston or New York.

When the coast guard boats and tugs started to the aid of the grounded steamer, it was expected that it might be necessary to wait for a high tide before an attempt was made to pull her back into deep water.

The stranded freighter, Captain Morris commanding, is owned by the Eastern Line of Liverpool, and is 413 feet long and is of 3779 tons.

'Back to the Farm' Move Urged by Auto Magnate

Advancing a theory of "back to the farm" as means of restoring prosperity to America, Henry Ford, multi-millionaire auto maker, prepared today to leave his Wayne Inn in Bathurst for his home in Dearborn, Mich.

Ford, 69, and mentally alert despite his 73 years, will leave Sunday night with Mrs. Ford and get ready for his conference with President Roosevelt next Wednesday at the White House.

Though he declared he will not offer advice to the Chief Executive, the motor magnate will express his opinion if asked, he indicated. Those close to him say that he would not have been asked to the White House if the President did not wish to hear Mr. Ford's ideas.

Ford's "back to the farm" plan entails the buying and renting of land, and its tilling, by all who are able, increase in the production of cheap farm products, he said, will stimulate science in its present research to obtain a supply of economical plastics for auto parts and low price fuel for autos.

In addition, he declared, it will teach the people the "habit of work," the loss of which, he said, is filling our prisons.

"Business will be better from now on," he said, "but people will have to go back to the farm. I don't know how they'll get money if they don't."

For 25 minutes he talked on his farm policy and at the end of the unusually long interview with newspapermen said:

"Well, I've talked too much already. He sprang up the slope of his Sunbury farm and disappeared in his car.

Child Bride, Hubby

Delaware state troopers took Alice Mae Walcott, 12-year-old bride, away from her 37-year-old husband as he prepared supper at Lewes, Del., last night. Checking up on truancy of Alice caused discovery of child bride. They were photographed at Lewes as Alice was hanging out clothes.

seeking to establish when the alleged conspiracy was formed, how long it was in operation, which of the seven accused persons solicited jurors, who paid the gratuities alleged and similar facts.

DOLAN'S MOTION

The Dolan petition, similar to that of Quinn's, declared: "The defendant Dolan says that the charge against him is not fully, plainly, substantially and formally set out in the complaint; that to prepare for his defense he desires information and more the court to order the prosecution to file a statement or bill of particulars as may be necessary to give the defendant and the court a reasonable knowledge of the nature and grounds of the charge."

"Miss X" was inserted into the case when Dolan announced:

"I am looking for a woman—Miss X—in this matter. I am exceedingly anxious to find her. I want to question her in regard to vital developments in the case."

He refused to identify his anonymous informant except to say that "Miss X" was a blonde and red looking.

At the courthouse a crowd of several hundred persons had gathered to await the surrender of Simpson.

REFUSES TO TALK

Greeted by curious stunts, the accused broker hurried from the building after the arraignment, but pulled low over his eyes and evident concern and worry during his appearance.

To all queries, Simpson made the same answer. It was:

"I have nothing to say."

Dolan, Quinn, and Edward J. Supple are the three to be tried in connection with the bond transactions alleged to have been perpetrated between the city and Land Securities Corporation, which Dolan is charged with having arranged while city treasurer.

Dolan, Quinn and former Boston senative Dinsmore, whose surrender is expected today, were named in the contempt petitions with Simpson. The other three listed were described by aliases.

Meanwhile, Dolan continued his examination of witnesses in the case, interviewing two men this morning.

Accompanied by Sergeant John Watkins, he announced he would leave the state later in the day to take an affidavit from another source. Ten persons, including three women, interviewed yesterday, were placed under police guard in the interim.

WATCHING VENTUREMEN

Dolan will be aided in his probe by Assistant District Attorney Joseph A. Sullivan, it was announced by District Attorney William J. Foley.

Presentation of new evidence, including records of a dictagraph placed in a Back Bay hotel room, was hinted as police widened their search for the three unnamed Boston men wanted in connection with the case.

Identity of the 13 witnesses was closely guarded. It was learned one of the three women is a stenographer, another the owner of a small store and the third a "landlady."

After District Attorney Foley was informed of the alleged attempted jury-packing, private detectives were assigned to trail the prospective jurors.

Landon Lashes Deal's 'Gamble'

Stage if we are honest and economical will have to economize. But we will have to economize in a way that will not be a selfishness."

"The nation's health," he said, "is being jeopardized by an artifice of expediency, to continue to take action and assume leadership."

"INTOXICATED INFLATION?" "Congress must decide if we are to take the hard road, or if we shall dash gaily and blindly into this intoxicating blarney of inflation by meeting our current expenditures for the nine successive years with L.O.U.'s."

All responsibility, Landon said, must be placed upon Congress, and the citizenry must not be "intoxicated."

"It has already been proven conclusively that when the people want something, and want it badly enough," he said, "they can get the Congress to follow their directions."

"If those who are against these inflationary measures haven't the courage to say so openly, they can't blame their representatives in Congress for listening to the clamor for more reckless spending."

"ROOSEVELT GAMBLE?" "President Roosevelt is gambling," he said, "that he can raise the national income by a policy of government spending."

"But this program is the opposite of the policy of the Treasury only five months ago. With several ways to check the depression, the President has chosen the one that the record of his administration shows will not work."

Recovery from an un sound fiscal policy cannot be accomplished in the "short breathing spell" which the administration threateningly allowed business," Landon said.

"If we are to work our way back to a sound basis, it would mean the government must live on an enormous increase of taxes to bring the budget into balance," he declared.

"Such a course, Landon said, would require "outrage." He declared:

"So far further we go in the direction we are now heading, the longer and more severe will be the period of suffering when we attempt to go into reverse, or if we do not reverse, when we come to the inevitable crash."

Lodge Kin Seeks Her 3rd Divorce

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Mrs. Presley Morgan Taylor, grand daughter of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, today sought a divorce in the court of common pleas from her third husband.

Mrs. Taylor was the former Countess Gardner of Beverly, Mass. She was married in 1913 to Grafton Minto of Boston. They were divorced in 1924, she married William Gordon Means in Washington. They were divorced in 1930 at Philadelphia. She married Taylor, an engineer, the same year.

22 Driven Out In Dorchester Fire

A blaze, said by firemen to have been caused by a carelessly discarded cigarette, today drove 22 persons from a Dorchester market and caused damage estimated at $800.

Because of dense smoke, firemen were forced to don gas masks to fight the flames in the cellar of the establishment in Washington street, Codman square.

Holdup Trough Sought

Police today sought three men who robbed Louis Fine of Baird street, Dorchester, insurance collector, while he waited through Clarence park, South End. They had had no guns the men crowded around Fine and took $25 from his pockets. They missed $80 in one pocket.

Dolan Case Surrender

Named in the contempt petitions involving former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan, Harold Simpson, Boston broker, is shown as he arrived at Suffolk superior court today to surrender himself. Simpson was held in $1000 bail by Chief Justice John P. Higgins. A large crowd gathered to witness the proceedings.

Doctors at Lynn Hospital strove today to isolate a mystery germ with which six nurses and two attendants were suddenly stricken.

No patients at the hospital have contracted the mainly health authorities reported. All those stricken, the names of whom were withheld, have been isolated.

Dr. Dan Traynor, hospital superintendent, and Dr. Thomas R. O'Brien, acting city health commissioner, declared they had not been able to identify the illness definitely.

An isolation ward was set up at once in another building to prevent any spread among patients.

Coleman Larkin, 24, of Putnam avenue, Cambridge, now unemployed, said to be a bartender, and this fact proved his downfall today, according to Cambridge police.

Found drifting in the booth of a Boston street, Cambridge, tavern, at 4:30 a. m., Larkin was arrested on charges of breaking and entering and larceny. He was alleged to have taken $21.14 from the cash register.

According to Captain John J. Carney, three bottles of whiskey and most of the money were found on the bar, Carney said.

"Every time he'd pour himself a drink, Larkin would ring up a 25 cent sale on the register. You see, he used to be a bartender."

R. I. Income Tax Killed; Senate, House Adjourn

Horse Racing Issue Dies; Budget Is Cut To $15,000,000

PROVIDENCE, April 22 (AP)—Rhode Island's 1938 Legislature adjourned shortly after 4 o'clock this morning after killing Governor Quinn's income tax plan.

A series of constitutional amendments backed by the Democratic administration and a proposed referendum on the question of continued horse-race betting also were killed.

The Assembly had been deadlocked through the last day session which began in the afternoon, and not until midnight was the issue broken so that the Democratic House, loyal to Governor Quinn, agreed to pass a budget which had been slashed $2,750,000 in the Senate.

$15,000,000 BUDGET

When an agreement to pass the $15,000,000 bill was reached, the House did so, despite only a few moments after the Republican-controlled Senate had killed it.

The governor had sought a $17,000,000 budget, and income tax to effect a balance of the budget.

Opposition to the income tax bill came from 27 Republican senators and Senator Graham Ader (D.) of Newport. Opponents said the bill would drive wealthy residents of Newport, Watch Hill and other resorts to other states.

WHAT SOLATIONS DID

Important measures passed by the session include:

A three-cent gasoline tax; a coupon law providing for use of voting machines in party elections; $1,000,000 for sewer disposal plant; bond issue; referendum to make Columbus day compulsory holiday; blood test requirements for persons getting marriage license and to expectant mothers.

Prisoners for horse race referendum died in committee.

wanted waste of the children's money to assure himself of a reliable headquarters and management staff, and that Dr. Dafoe had alienated the children's affections for their parents.

Acting for "Papa" Dionne, St. Jacques demanded a government probe of the guardian's activities.

During the interview Dr. Dafoe expressed his understanding of the attitude the father and mother of the quintuplets have taken toward him and the government supervision of their children.

He openly challenged not only the children's father and the provincial attorney to go through with any investigation they planned but added:

"That challenge goes from me to anybody else who has an idea I am not doing my job to the best of my ability."

The doctor declared that the parents of the children have been misquoted by outsiders who have been anxious to "horn in" on something that is none of their business.

Dr. Dafoe revealed for the first time that the five babies, now four years old, have $600,000 in the bank in their own names. He said:

"These children now have approximately $600,000 in the bank that belongs to them. I mean money left after payment of all expenses for the hospital and the administration and the care of them."

Mr. Dionne is doing very well with his store across the street. He is the one, and the only one, who benefits from the tourists they say I am so much interested in. No charge is made for tourists. He has the only store around and that's located right across the street from where the babies are.

Charges Dionnes Stayed Away From Guardians' Meetings

"Mr. Dionne has done so well that he has had six expensive automobiles in a year and a half. He trades his cars about once every two months. He has a beautiful car now."

Dr. Dafoe revealed he had personally seen to it that Mr. and Mrs. Dionne's income from contracts signed in behalf of the children had been increased from $100 dollars a month to $300 a month since the birth of the last Dionne baby only three weeks ago.

"I, being a doctor, figured they might need more money when that last youngster came along so I suggested we increase the income for Oliva and his wife by $200 a month."

The famed doctor charged that Dionne had deliberately re-

Pershing's Son Weds Society Girl Today

General Among 2000 Guests Who Will Attend Bridal

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Copyright, 1938, by International News Service

NEW YORK, April 22 (INS)—Society civic leaders and men and women prominent in national affairs will gather in St. Thomas' church this afternoon to witness the marriage of General "Black Jack" Pershing's only son to one of Mayfair's best known "lovelies." And as brunette Muriel Bach Richards walks up the long, flower-banked aisle of the Fifth Avenue edifice to meet blonde, curly-headed P. Warren Pershing, she will hold the attention of over 2000 highly placed guests, all happy over having been hidden to the "wedding of the season."

GOWNED IN SATIN
Herman Patrick Tappe has designed for Muriel a bridal gown of sheerest beauty. Made of shimmering ivory satin, on graceful princess lines, it is fashioned with a draped bodice and long tight sleeves.

It is in the assemblage of the bridal attendants, however, that Herman Tappe has let his imagination have full sway—and as Muriel approaches the altar at St. Thomas', on the arm of her father, Frederick L. Richards, she will be preceded by a bevy of bridesmaids whose sartorial effects will remind one of nothing so much as royal presentation at the Court of St. James.

MANY BRIDESMAIDS
Among the bridesmaids at the wedding will be Mrs. Clifford Mitchell, a sister; Mrs. Alice McCulloch, Mrs. Sherman Jolley, Mrs. Marshall Henshaw, Cynthia Bunge and Eleanor R. Reed.

N. Dudley Thayer will serve as Warren's best man, and among the "knight-of-the-aisles," who will escort the highly placed guests to their proper seats will be Gordon W. Henderson, Theodore Winkler, Jr., Curtis C. Gary, Paul Felix Warburg, Sherman Jolley, Clifford Mitchell, William Gamble Woodward, Jr., R. Arden Lowman, John Hamilton Baker and Charles C. Wood, Jr.

Detroit Strike Parley Opens

DETROIT, April 22 (AP)—The Auto Aluminum & Brass Company and the United Automobile Workers of America turned in a conference today in hope of ending a strike which closed the company's seven Detroit plants.

The possibility that the firm might withdraw its Detroit operations was seen in the statement by P. A. Markey, vice-president, that it "has been investigating real estate values" in New York and Illinois.

No negotiation to settle strikes here at the American Brass Company, the Detroit Moulding Corporation and the Michigan Steel Casting Company had been announced.

The U. A. W. insisted there was a strike also at the Hulet Top & Body Company, but the management said it had not been operating for some time.

Could Re-elected To Maritime Post

At a meeting of the governing board of the recently incorporated Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Albert T. Gould, well-known maritime lawyer, was re-elected for the sixth consecutive time as the body's chairman.

Renewing incumbents were also re-elected. Robert G. Stone, Boston banker, was re-elected vice-chairman; Henry C. Nichols, treasurer of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, retained that position in the Maritime Association; Albert D. Lyman, who is also secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was re-elected secretary and Joseph A. Morris was re-elected assistant secretary.

Roxbury Officers Turn Goat Sleuths

As if things weren't bad enough in the police business, police of Dudley street station in Roxbury were asked today to find two lady goats who wandered away from Fellows court.

The goats were missing from their home grounds today when the answer came out to milk them.

The nanny, according to police, are owned by General Mastrogiovanni of 3 Fellows court.

"PAPA" DIONNE

"MAMA" DIONNE

Papa Dionne is shown here about to give his autograph to a tourist and her baby while his secretary looks on. Dionne has attacked Dr. Dafoe on the ground he is more interested in tourist business than in the welfare of the quintuplets. Inset shows the father and mother of the famous five babies. They were recently visited again by the stork.

swer to that organization L' Association Canadienne-Francaise D'Education D'Ontario. The rest of it is that they are going to be taught English starting next year."

To the charge that his carelessness in the handling of his hospital had resulted in a fire last year, Dr. Dafoe answered briefly:

"Some fool hung some towels on an electric wire and I gave them —. That won't happen again."

Dr. Dafoe was particularly bitter in his answer to the charge that he was more interested in showing the quints to the public and that more than once the doctor had said: "I don't care about the quints. I care about the public."

To this the doctor said:

"That is a damnable lie. I have given the best I have to aid those children. That is what I will continue to do. I brought them into the world and I am going to keep them here. My record speaks for itself. If it wasn't for me, every one of them would be dead now."

"Right now those children are in great shape. They are out every day playing just like other kids their age. They are fine and healthy. They look just like a million dollars."

Dr. Dafoe then discussed his plans for the education of the five children, both scholastic and religious training.

"The youngsters will receive the same education that other children receive, only under supervision, of course. That is the only way they can be taught, at least for the time being. When they are older they will be able to choose whichever schools they may wish to attend."

Their religious training will be the same training prescribed by the Roman Catholic church for its young communicants. The parents of the children are Catholic. Their brothers and sisters are Catholic. They, too, will be brought up as Catholics."

He declared he had personally sent the children's father several registered letters during the past several months and added that although Dionne had signed the receipt for these guardianship notices he had failed to appear at the meetings.

Dr. Dafoe then explained his charge that the two women were at the bottom of what he described as a "plot against me":

"It got so they were telling me what to do. You know, answering me back and I began to figure out that I was the boss so I undertook to fire them."

Dr. Dafoe said the two women after they were discharged talked with the girls' father and he voiced his objections "pretty strenuously."

He said the discharge of the two women was discussed at a meeting of the guardians, adding:

"I sent several notices to Dionne to attend this meeting called to consider the charges which I had preferred against the women. He ignored them."

All the notices were sent by registered mail, the doctor said.

To the charges that the father and mother were not permitted to see the famous five members of the Dionne family, Dr. Dafoe passed the lie.

To charges that he was preventing the children from learning the French language, Dr. Dafoe answered:

"That charge is a foolish lie. As a matter of fact these youngsters are going to be bi-lingual. They are going to talk French and English. They are going to talk those two languages because those are the languages of the people of this part of the country and, after all, America is only down the line a few miles and you talk English down there."

"They are talking only French now. That's my partial an-

Claim Wage Bill Will Prevent Deflation

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—The House labor committee recommended today enactment of its revised wage-hour bill to prevent a "vicious spiral of deflation" which, it said, "may threaten the foundations of government itself."

A majority of the committee said the need for the legislation was "urgent" because of the recent "alarmingly sharp decline in business activity."

"With that decline have come the inevitable wage cuts which the great mass of American business men so deplore but are powerless to prevent," the committee said.

"These business men know that wage-cutting sets in motion a vicious spiral of deflation which, if allowed to gather sufficient strength, may threaten the foundations of government itself."

The committee said the bill which would establish a graduated minimum wage, starting at 25 cents an hour and rising up to 40 cents at the end of three years with hours decreasing from 44 to 40 in 40 years would "go far in remedying the situation."

"It establishes a floor for wages and a ceiling for hours and abolishes child labor," the committee said. "At the end of three years the minimum wage, which employers will temper to meet the needs of the industry, will be 40 a week."

"It is to be hoped that within that time the general states will adopt similar if not higher standards for employers within their jurisdiction."

Tax Bill Parley Seeks Accord

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Committees renewed efforts today to compromise differences between Senate and House tax bills amid signs of congressional accord over their delay in reaching an accord.

"I think the conference should agree as soon as possible," commented Senator Hatch (D) New Mexico, a member of the Senate unemployment committee.

The Senate measure drafted along lines advocated by business spokesmen would impose a 15 percent tax on corporation income and a flat 15 percent on capital gains. The House bill, favored by President Roosevelt, would reduce the present undistributed profits tax on corporations and levy a graduated scale on capital gains.

The DAILY MERRY

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON—American career diplomats hold the British Foreign Office in reverence almost as if it were the deity. American policy in Europe, they contend, should be nothing to offend the British. In fact, London is consulted on every move.

This is the policy of Hugh Wilson, Hugh Gibson, Jimmy Dunn, and others near the top of the younger career men strive to emulate them. The adoration is self-perpetuating.

How close the career boys stick to the British has been indicated this week in regard to Spain. A growing group of diplomats has been demanding the lifting of the embargo against the Spanish Government. This includes some of the most powerful members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

However, Prime Minister Chamberlain, having received a letter from the British Foreign Office, has decided that France should not be allowed to join the British in the embargo. The British Foreign Office has now sold this idea to our career diplomats. And the career boys inform interested Senators.

Gen. Johnson Says: A THOROUGHbred Roosevelt Tries His Best

By HUGH S. JOHNSON
WASHINGTON, April 22—Believe it or not, I get sicker even than any of my customers of cracking down, day after day, on each new Presidential policy.

It isn't merely affection for an old and once very close friend. It is that I know so well the terrific pressure of that awful office. I use the adjective in its accurate and not everyday sense. It should be spelled "awe-full."

To sit in that seat of Godlike power and know that any error in daily action may send thousands or, in extreme cases, millions to poverty, prison or even death—to sit there charged with preserving the principles and traditions of such a nation as this—in some part, an agent for the destiny of the world—the successor of heroes—Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln—it is a proud stewardship, but it is ordal by torture.

In the democratic process, no man can use this veritable mantle of martyrdom to shield himself from criticism of every action. While the President has winced at some shafts, he has never tried that.

I doubt if any of us here has been more poignantly critical than this one, and yet he once said to me: "I not only don't object, but I agree with about 75 per cent of what you say. For various reasons of responsibility and compromise in this office, I cannot dictate my own course of action. To move forward I must accommodate myself to more opinions than one."

I am pretty hard-boiled, but that one brought a lump in my throat. It wasn't in the least intended as a self-dramatization of a "pale martyr in his shirt of iron." It was a statement of a simple fact of statesmanship. It got a panning only for overemphasis and exaggeration in the sea of advocacy. Similarly, a worried capitalist in radio made a tentative inquisitive remark about my critical broadcasts. He got an immediate response that there was no objection except overemphasis and an observation that critics got cracked just as hard. The commanly repeated rumor that the White House had "me taken off the air" is sheer imagination.

It is true that I won't put back on, because business is afraid of this Administration. But that fear is justified by anything the White House or the broadcasting companies ever did or intended, is pure chicanery.

I confidently believe the Administration has gone plumb loco to industry. And now the instable Jesse has made another grab for power.

Operating secretly and surreptitiously, he is moving heaven and earth to corner the proposed new billion-dollar public works lending fund and keep it out of the millions of hands of Harold Kees, whom Democratic conservatives consider a real threat to the Roosevelt administration. In addition to Jesse's own ambitions, there is a two-way motive behind this:

1.—To keep the new public works loans in line with the Roosevelt-appealing theories.

2.—To use whatever loans are granted as a means of building up a political following in the career drive to control the Democratic nomination in 1940—not for Jesse, at least for some other conservative.

WATCHING PALM—Hugh showed Jesse Jones that it was impossible for the government to purchase the 500,000,000 loans-to-industry authorized by the Roosevelt bill. He triumphed completely over the Inner Circle.

Jesse already had been given the power to lend up to $200,000,000. But all during the winter, as the recession deepened, he never lifted a finger to aid business. In a total of four years he had loaned only about $100,000,000 out of the total of $300,000,000.

Then Securities and Exchange Chairman Douglas and other New Dealers got busy planning a system of regional government banks for loans to industry. Jesse heard of it, and suddenly jumped into action.

Overnight he popped a personal proposal to expand his own lending power to industry by $1,500,000,000. And with the potent pull of Garner and Carter Glass he whipped it through Congress.

NOTE—Few people realize it, but the RUC has $400,000,000 invested in the railroad, and Jesse had been desired, could have forced the roads to consolidate long ago. Rail experts repeatedly have urged him to bring such pressure.

President Roosevelt's Own Story: U. S. Helps End Old Wars Between 'Good Neighbors'

ARTICLE NO. 27
ON THE GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY (III)
A Comment of Franklin D. Roosevelt from His Confidential Books

(EDITOR'S NOTE—To the president of the Pan-American conference in Montevideo, December, 1933, which was described in yesterday's article, President Roosevelt sent a message urging peace in the Gran Chaco, adding his own influence to the efforts of the League of Nations and the President of Uruguay. The bitter war between Bolivia and Paraguay, not to be ended for two more years, was only one affair in the American family of nations viewed with concern by the Good Neighbor. There were other disputes between Peru and Ecuador, between Peru and Colombia, and unrest in Haiti. Early in 1934 Peru and Ecuador obtained President Roosevelt's agreement to help arbitrate their boundary controversy. This was in accordance with the Ponce-Castro Protocol signed 10 years before.)

The boundary dispute between Peru and Ecuador involves the two former Spanish colonial provinces of Jaen and Manabí. It dates back to the early part of the nineteenth century. Since then there have been many attempts to settle the dispute, all without success.

Under the 1924 Protocol, pending the sending of delegations to Washington, negotiations continued between the disputants themselves in an effort to arrive at a peaceful solution of the boundary question.

The negotiations between the parties were not brought to any conclusion; and on July 1, 1925, an agreement was signed at La Paz, the seat of the negotiations to Washington.

Since September 1, 1932, when a group of about 300 Peruvian soldiers entered the Colombian town of Leticia, there had been continued dispute and fighting between Peru and Colombia about the boundary.

At a specific point in the history of the controversy were made by both the League of Nations and the United States.

U. S. Forbids Sale of Arms
We co-operated actively and thoroughly in all of the efforts made for a peaceful determination of the controversy. Success finally resulted in the signing of a treaty by the delegates of the two governments.

The agreement recognized and reaffirmed the sanctity of treaties, since it was based upon the validity of a prior boundary treaty between the two governments in 1822. It also formed a basis of continued co-operation to solve present and future problems in the area, recognizing war as a means of settlement.

This recognition of the obligation of treaties and this establishment of the principle of arbitration in disputes between the two nations were important steps in the building of machinery for peace on this continent.

(Editor's Note—Settlement of the controversy was hailed on May 21, 1928, by telegrams from President Roosevelt to the Presidents of Colombia and Peru, and again on September 25, 1928, when the agreements were ratified by the two countries.)

An important step in ending the Chaco dispute was a proclamation issued by me on May 1934, pursuant to a joint resolution of the Congress. It prohibited the export of arms and munitions of war to the United States or to any other country.

After the proclamation, the administration continued its efforts to assist in the achievement of a settlement. On July 12, 1934, the United States, Argentina and Brazil proposed a peace plan which the belligerents who did not adopt.

The efforts of the League of Nations to bring about a peaceful settlement were also unsuccessful, and in fact resulted in the withdrawal of Paraguay from the League on February 23, 1935.

Finally a mediatory group, composed of representatives of Argentina, Chile, Brazil, Peru, Uruguay and the United States, met in Buenos Aires in May, 1935, with the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the delegates of the two governments.

Peace Treaty Signed at Last

A peace protocol was finally signed on June 12, 1935, and actual hostilities in the Chaco ceased on June 19, 1935. The protocol provided for a peace conference to seek a settlement of all questions at stake between Bolivia and Paraguay. In the meantime the armies have been demobilized, prisoners of war have been repatriated, and an agreement has been reached between Bolivia and Paraguay to renew diplomatic relations.

The arms embargo remained in force until it was revoked on August 1, 1935, when Bolivia and Paraguay had formally adopted a resolution declaring that the war between Bolivia and Paraguay had come to an end.

Pursuant to the treaty of 1935, and the protocol of 1935, we had assumed certain obligations in the financial administration of Haiti upon which holders of Haitian bonds had relied in buying their securities.

In response to the request of the Haitian Government for a modification of the then existing financial administration, we undertook a series of difficult and delicate negotiations with Haiti, which culminated in an agreement between the United States and Haiti on August 7, 1935.

In the Accord the Government of the United States agreed to accelerate the liquidation of the Garde d'Haiti, to turn over the lands under administration to Haitian officers by October 1, 1934, to withdraw the Marine Brigade and the American Scientific Mission not later than October 1, 1934, and to make various modifications reducing the powers of the Financial Administration.

Respectively, the name of the office was changed to that of Fiscal Representative beginning January 1, 1934.

U. S. Seeks to Quit Acting for Haiti
This agreement was very favorable to Haiti, but a group of Haitians, headed by President Vincent, started a campaign to make the United States withdraw from all participation in the administration of Haitian finances.

(Editor's Note—On November 16, 1935, President Vincent wrote to President Roosevelt asking for the termination of the agreement, under which Haiti was financially administered by the United States.)

The financial administration—President Roosevelt offered the government's good offices in any way which would not involve it in any further responsibilities in Haiti.

The letter pointed out our obligation of good faith to the individuals who had purchased Haitian bonds. It also indicated our eagerness to withdraw completely from Haitian finances if some refunding arrangement could be made which was satisfactory to the bondholders.

In fact, the agreement of August 7th provided that Haiti could retire the bonds before their due date, providing she could make a satisfactory arrangement for that purpose.

The bonds will be retired by 1934 and at that time the financial administration under the agreement of August 7, 1935, will completely cease, even if no satisfactory arrangements for refunding can be made by Haiti before that time.

During the Pan-American conference at Montevideo early in December of 1933, the Haitian delegation approached the Secretary of State with a suggestion that the existing financial control be withdrawn from the designation by the government of the United States of the National Bank of Haiti to supervise and carry out the service of the Haitian debt.

At the same time the Haitian government, desirous of contracting a small loan for the financing of certain public works, was expressing certain American business houses the possibilities of obtaining a loan in New York and later on to Washington to discuss with me and other officials of the government the question of certain proposed modifications to the existing American financial control.

Republic of Haiti for the office of the Fiscal Representative. The Bank was to be purchased by the Haitian government, and the Haitian government was to have a board of directors of which four of whom were to represent the Fiscal Agent and the bondholders.

Although this plan had not reached final form by the time President Vincent reached Washington on April 18, our two governments were in such general agreement as to the basis for this plan that it was possible for us to refer to it as a joint statement of April 17, 1934. Moreover, at the time the statement was issued, negotiations for a trade agreement between the two countries were well advanced that it, too, was included in the statement.

Contingent upon the departure of the United States Marines late in 1934, I was able to inform President Vincent that I would request authority of the United States Congress to make a gift to the Haitian Government of a large part of the Marine Corps material then in Haiti.

In July of 1934, I personally visited Haiti, and there concluded the final arrangements which led to the withdrawal of the American forces of occupation in August, 1934, over two months prior to the original date set for the withdrawal of the marine.

Due to certain Haitian domestic considerations, the purchase of the National Bank of the Republic of Haiti could not be consummated in 1934 as planned, but was deferred until 1935. Other considerations have since intervened to delay a conclusion of a new form of financial co-operation based upon the purchase of the bank.

Deal Spokesmen Deny 8 Billion Deficit Due

WASHINGTON, April 22 (INS)—Spokesmen for the national credit facilities, grant strikers' railroad emergency loans, and estimate a permanent financial expansion program for utilities and other public works to $4,500,000,000 recovery drive today.

At the same time, administration spokesmen vigorously denied Republican charges in Congress that the new spend-and-extend program threatens the government with an $8,000,000,000 deficit for the next fiscal year, and encompasses a $3,000,000,000 issue of inflationary "greenbacks."

Representative Woodruff (D) of Virginia, member of the House Appropriations committee in charge of drafting the proposed omnibus recovery bill, declared that conservative Treasury estimates of the anticipated deficit do not exceed $3,000,000,000, and he dismissed the "greenback" charge as "ridiculous."

Meanwhile, Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau set machinery into operation to pour $400,000,000 in devalued gold into private credit channels in the next eight weeks at the rate of $50,000,000 per week.

On another front, the Senate Interstate Commerce committee prepared to draft legislation for immediate enactment, lifting the requirement of ICC approval for RFC loans to railroads, in an effort to speed $200,000,000 in loans recommended by President Roosevelt to encourage purchase of rail equipment.

In the House, the Appropriations committee was disclosed to have heard testimony from Aubrey Williams, head of the National Youth Administration, to the effect that the $75,000,000 for N.Y.A. sought by Roosevelt will be used to boost the agency's work projects from 150,000 to 200,000 youth and to continue assistance to 400,000 adults.

FITCHBURGH, April 22—Two elementary grade pupils in the public schools here faced expulsion today as the result of a vote by the school committee investigating their refusal to salute the flag.

Dr. Luigi M. Desio, school board member, said he would insist on the law being upheld in the public case. The father of one of the pupils is employed on the W.P.A.

Judge Angered As Man Admits Lashing Tots

Jurist Leaps From Bench, Stirred by Beating Story

WOODSTOCK, Ill., April 22 (INS)—His face red with fury, Judge Henry Cowin restrained himself with difficulty from punishing a young farmer who was in court on charges he had beaten unmercifully his three-year-old son and two-year-old daughter.

ASKS EXPLANATION

After neighbors of the farmer and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Monroe, told how Monroe, 21, had lashed the babes with a heavy leather strap 15 inches long and two inches wide, Judge Cowin leaped from the bench, his eyes flashing. He stared at Monroe a moment, then returned to the bench.

"I wish it was consistent with the dignity of this court for me to give you a taste of it yourself," he said.

"How on earth can you explain such treatment of these children?" he demanded.

"I'll punish my children if I please and as often as I please," the farmer replied firmly. "It is good for them."

GIRL DESCRIBES BEATING

An eight-year-old girl, who played with the Monroe children, described in detail a beating administered the Monroe told last Saturday she said.

"He took the clothes off the little boy's back... Made the boy bend over the kitchen table... lifted the strap high up with his right hand and hit him with it. He hit him again and again... I could see the blood start..."

"The little boy was screaming, 'Don't hit me any more, please don't hit me.' The girl was hanging on to her mother's skirts... sobbing and shrieking..."

The girl received the same treatment the witness said.

Judge Cowin appointed a guardian ad litem for the children and warned the parents that any more of the beatings would cause them to be taken custody permanently.

Civic Leaders Protest Fire House Closings

Civic leaders and legislators from Roxbury, Charlestown, and the North End combined today in a widespread denunciation of Fire Commissioner William A. Reilly's plan to close and consolidate fire houses in those sections.

A meeting will be held tonight at the James P. Timilty School, Roxbury, in protest of the closing yesterday of Engine 15, Cabot and Whittier streets. It was expected state officials and an audience of 1500 will attend.

Charlestown leaders planned a similar meeting to protest the closing today of the Elm street fire station, which houses Engine 27.

Attorney Gabriel F. Finn, law associate of Representative Edward P. Baigrie, in commenting on Commissioner Reilly's plan to abandon the Salem street, North End station and place engine 9 in the Haymarket Relief Hospital building, declared:

"If any attempt is made to use the relief station building for other than hospital purposes we will fight it in court."

Representative John J. Cronin and John L. Murray protested the closing of the Roxbury fire house, decided to turn back.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 22—True to his medical code, although ill himself since January, Dr. Daniel F. Gray, 70, of this city, hurried in response to a call that one of his oldest patients was very sick.

As he crossed the threshold of the home of Mrs. Celia McCall, 83, a native of Charlestown, Mass., relatives told him he was too late.

Mrs. McCall, they said, just died. Tired, the physician sank into a chair.

"I guess the exertion was a little too much for me," he said, as he slumped over in the chair—dead.

Tewksbury Set For Cleanout Of Inmates

Trustees Studying
Report on Deaths
From Alcohol

TEWKSBURY, April 22—A wholesale cleanout of persons given sanctuary at the Tewksbury infirmary is being planned by trustees studied reports of a secret investigation into the deaths of four inmates who drank poison alcohol at an impromptu party.

More than a score faced transfer to Bridgewater unless they changed their behavior and obeyed hospital rules, it was learned.

The trustees' exhaustive probe was nearing completion, it was reported, as District Attorney Warren L. Bishop prepared for an inquest into the deaths.

The inquest was set for next Tuesday at 10 a. m. in Lowell district court by Judge Patrick J. Reynolds.

DEATH TOLL NINE

Meantime, the death toll through violence at the hospital within the past three months mounted to nine with the fatal burning of John Kelley, 75, who was injured when he was lifted from his bed by a fire.

Four inmates were shot to death by a man named two months ago.

Hospital trustees were said to be greatly disturbed over the recurrence of violence at the infirmary and were reported to be making plans for additional attendance at the hospital. Transfer of several employees and the dismissal of others was freely predicted by those close to the administration.

District Attorney Bishop announced his decision to hold an inquest following a conference with Dr. Lawrence K. Kelley, superintendent of the infirmary. With the announcement, however, he declared he had "extreme confidence" in Dr. Kelley's management of the institution.

In McCall's hands, the agitated patient, who was sitting in a wheel-chair on the infirmary porch when the tragedy occurred, allegedly caused by a pipe he had been smoking.

Exclusive Chilton Club Scene
Of Fancy Dress Party

By BETTY ALDEN

ELEVATOR OPERATORS at the exclusive Chilton Club had to exercise the utmost diplomacy last evening to keep from causing the formally clad gentlemen and gold braided military officers... who arrived to attend the fancy dress party... that when they failed to remove their hats in the clubhouse... especially in the company of ladies... they were violating one of the elementary rules of masculine etiquette...

MRS. CHARLES HOVEY

Every time a lady and her silk-hatted escort stepped into the elevator to go up to the ballroom where the dance was held, the operator was tempted to request the gentleman to remove his hat... but on second thought refrained, for the wearers of the top hats were only gentlemen for the evening...

It was a case of clothes making the man... for all the "gentlemen" were Chilton Club members dressed in formal masculine garb... Some of our most punctilious Back Bay matrons, whose manners are flawless in their own drawing rooms are a little bit at sea when trying to emulate the sterner sex...

Though only women are admitted to the Chilton Club's membership, men are allowed to enter the sacred confines of the clubhouse at frequent dances, parties and lectures... yet every once in a while the ladies like to assert their independence and prove that they can get along without the masculine element...

No men were invited to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary party which was held two years ago this month... Various members donned suits and uniforms borrowed from husbands, sons or brothers... and served as escorts to other members who refrained from feminine... Last evening's party was a similar affair... planned to be a revival of the assemblies which were popular before the war...

In the pre-war days, S. Hooper-Hooper led the cotton at the assemblies, so last evening, Mrs. Robert Lovett, leader of the Chilton Club cotton, emulated Mr. Hooper in every way possible... she had even spent a whole day searching for an old picture of him in order to perfect all the details... and made a very gallant leader of the Grand March when the party got under way...

Many Impersonate Gentlemen
MRS. CHARLES MIXTER was another member impersonating a gentleman as were Mrs. John Grandin, Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, Mrs. Orie Bates and Miss Hope Gage...

In contrast Mrs. Thelma Barbour looked very feminine in her rose and gold lame gown, carrying a large white net which was as much of a bunch of American beauties... Mrs. Henry A. Tudor also carried a bunch of roses, which matched her ruby red velvet wrap... a formal dignified touch was added to her outfit by the feather in her gray hair...

Mrs. Philip S. Sears wore a luscious gown made of yards of raspberry chiffon, with slippers to match and a cluster of bachelor buttons at the low V neckline... Still others in the select company were Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Mrs. Eben Draper, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Horatio Lamb and her daughter, Almee Lamb...

Mrs. Louis A. Frothingham and Mrs. M. Grasmere Houghton are sailing this evening on the Bremen, for a six-week trip to England and France... They expect to return early in June to open their respective summer homes on the North Shore...

Benjamin Goodales Visited by Stork
THE BENJAMIN GOODALES' new baby daughter first saw the light of day Wednesday... and brought unbounded joy not only to her parents, but to her grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. William H. Dewar of Crowhaven, Manchester, and Mr. Percy Goodale of Park avenue, New York...

The new baby, whose mother is the former Mary Dewar, will be christened Penelope... Among her aunts and uncles are Elizabeth Dewar, who is studying in London, England, Mrs. Morris Morgan of London, who is making a visit in this country at present, four young Dewar uncles and the Messrs Robert and Percy Goodale, Jr., of Boston...

Luncheon at Burrage Home
MRS. CLARENCE BURRAGE of Marlborough street addressed a Frenchy touch to the appointments on her luncheon table yesterday afternoon in honor of her guest of honor, Mrs. Charles Hovey of Versailles... She set the table with a heavy white linen cloth printed with duobonnet fleurs-de-lys and added an effective centerpiece of calla lilies and blueberry foliage...

The luncheon followed Mrs. Hovey's lecture, with colored slides, on how she and her husband acquired the "Pavillon de Barry" in Versailles and redecorated and transformed it into such a magnificent place that the French government offered a handsome price for its purchase... A large audience was fascinated by Mrs. Hovey's remarks in the second of a series of lectures sponsored by the Boston chapter of the Institute of Interior Decorators...

The final lecture on May 5 will deal with first four executive mansions of the United States, from the point of view of a New York decorator, Gertrude G. Robinson... George Washington lived in three of the mansions and John Adams spent the last three months of his administration in the fourth, which was the first presidential home situated in Washington... Mrs. Fred B. Lund and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Fred, Jr., were among the listeners in the Junior League ballroom yesterday morning together with Mrs. Eleanor Fraser, Mrs. H. Swift, Howard Slayman, Mrs. Robert Booth, Mabel Harlow in a modish silk print with a large black hat trimmed with flowers to match the print, Mrs. James R. Torbert and many others...

Complete Details for Goodman Concert
FINAL DETAILS of the forthcoming concert by Benny Goodman, were discussed over the tea cups at Mrs. George H. Swift's yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Swift entertained members of the Ladies Aid of the Infants' Hospital, who are sponsoring the Goodman concert in Symphony Hall the evening of May 1, to benefit the hospital...

Among her guests were Mrs. Forrester A. Clark, with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Nathaniel Clark... Mrs. Charles Hovey, Mrs. Charles Deven with her mother, Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott, Mrs. Francis I. Amory, Rosemary Shaw, Mrs. Alfred Kidder, Jr., Mrs. Frederick M. Dearborn, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Beale, Mrs. F. Wade, Mrs. B. B. Hamilton Osgood, 22 Julia Barbour and Mrs. Robert Herrick, Jr....

MRS. ROBERT LOVETT

INSTEAD OF CARRYING May baskets about on May Day, Wendy Lee, sub-debante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lee of Brookline and Gloucester, will once again take her place on her parents' schooner yacht, Pegasus, as she did when this time was taken to greet Captain Irving Johnson's schooner Yankee on its return to Gloucester.

Myers Twins Are Brides Of Harvard Graduates
The Choate School in Brookline was the scene of a double wedding last evening when the twin daughters of Mrs. John Elwood Myers of Newton Center were united in marriage with two sons of Harvard...

The bridegroom, Kenneth R. Harding, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Harding of West Newton, and Robert H. Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Curtis of Milford, were members of the class of 1937 at Harvard and both are members of the Hasty Pudding Club...

SISTERS AS ATTENDANTS
Elizabeth Myers became the bride of Mr. Harding and Marion Myers is now the bride of Mr. Curtis. The Rev. Kenneth Miller of Garden City, L. I. officiated and the brides were given in marriage by their mother...

The Choate School was decorated with garlands of similar, and calla lilies and white chrysanthemums. Refreshing Your Home" by Agnes Tye, interior decorator, have been decided upon by the committee. Taking part in the affair are Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Louise Fitzgerald, Mrs. William Taylor, Mrs. Francis T. Jantzen, Mrs. William Drummond and Mrs. Joseph A. Barry, Jr.

DR. MILLER, DENTIST
USING E. R. PARKER SYSTEM, INC.
123 Washington Street
Worcester, Mass.

The suit was brought by Hiverta Laboratories, Inc., of New York, manufacturers of endocrine face cream used by women. Max Doyle is attorney for the plaintiff.

The complaint charges that the American Medical Association, Dr. Fishbein and others early in 1937 entered into a conspiracy "for the purpose of maliciously injuring and destroying the plaintiff's business, good will, reputation, credit and property."

WARNING CITED
The action as the result of publication in the April 9, 1938 issue of the Journal of an editorial warning against the use of endocrine and also release to the public press of an abstract of the allegedly libelous editorial.

TALK OF REPUTATION
The complaint states, "said Dr. Doyle, 'that every charge made by Dr. Fishbein and the journal is false and was known to be false by the authors. Dr. Fishbein chose to ignore all medical testimony bearing on the subject of endocrine compounds and the widespread use of extraneous in the treatment of women, in damage exceeding by thousands of times the amount of financial contained in endocrine.'"

The complaint sets forth that extraneous, the active ingredient in endocrine, has been in medical use for many years, that it is manufactured by the Hiverta Laboratories, a company which has established a national reputation of great merit and which in the hormone therapy field.

Referring to certain correspondence between the association's bureau and an inquirer concerning the product, Dr. Doyle commented: "It would appear from this correspondence that the American Medical Association was floundering woefully, making false charges first, then hedging and finally admitting that it had not examined endocrine."

NEW TESTS VALUE
It is stated in the complaint that the defendants knew tests made by the association were not accepted by medical authorities as indicative of the effect of endocrine on human beings.

The defendants, the complaint says, well knew that endocrine and other tests had been conducted at great length upon human beings with extraneous and other extraneous compounds over a period of many years and that no written published medical literature had the claim ever been made that such extraneous compound, including extraneous, over extraneous, is a human being.

"They also knew that such extraneous was not accepted by the defendants in said press release and in said editorial in the purpose of the said alleged wrongful and unlawful conspiracy, wholly for the purpose of attempting to bolster and support their vicious and malicious statements and inferences, knowing fully that said extraneous and the reports thereof, were wholly irrelevant, immaterial and unwarranted inferences and false statements which were made in the said press release and in said editorial."

English Hurler Holds Brighton Nine to One Hit

Seymour Epstein, Boston English, sensational Jewish hurler, just missed during a maximum no-hit game this morning when his Blue and Blue nine captured a sparkling 5 to 1 victory over Brighton high at Rogers Park in Brighton.

A scratch single just after second base from the Giants last year, he is a powerful, well-built man, and is expected to be a valuable addition to the team.

Bill Christenberger's English team, which was picked to win the first year, checking in with two runs on a pass, a hit by pitcher and a pair of singles.

With men on first and second, Captain Tommy Maloney, English's hard-hitting shortstop, blasted out a dandy single to sharp left, sending Doherty home from second with the No. 1 score.

Just to get you, he seems headed for a brilliant career, he is a powerful, well-built man, and is expected to be a valuable addition to the team.

MR. BEES

Bees Headed for New Heights

Players Insisted DiMaggio Sign

By JACK CONWAY

THE BEES were filled with new hope and fighting spirit as they returned to Boston today to open the league season at National League Park against the Phillies. Those fans who saw the men of Casey Stengel in their pre-season clashes with the Red Sox were impressed by their determination to go places this year.

Even Bill Terry and Charlie Grimm will admit the Bees do not have to ask for favors from anybody in the matter of pitchers and catchers. Jim Turner, Lou Fette and Danny MacFadden are three of the leading pitchers in the National League, while Al Lopez is a top catcher. Casey Stengel insists he has improved the batting strength of his club. He has been telling the fans since spring practice started in Florida that Gene Moore would be one of the great hitters of the league this season.

Stengel has been declaring Moore has what it takes to win ball games. Casey made a few changes in Moore's position in the lineup and knocked a home run with the bases filled in the second game of the series with the Giants.

Stengel also expects to see Vince DiMaggio hitting better this season.

The Phillies will not give the Bees as severe opposition as the Giants, and as a result a better line can be secured on the relative value of the local players.

I believe the town is solidly behind Stengel and Bob Quinn. The public feels they have made every possible effort to improve the Bees. The fans know that the Bees have plenty of spirit, and will be in there trying every second they are on the ball field.

The 33,000 crowd at the Sox-Yankees game on the holiday is proof of the fact Boston is one of the best baseball cities in the country. The Bees will also find large crowds attending their games if they can deliver with a winning punch.

Face New Problem

Scramble to Buy High Grade Bonds Reveals Dilemma

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The effect of President Roosevelt's super-savings money and bank investment programs is easily the paramount topic of financial circles today. The question of what to do with funds is already a acute problem that has commercial bankers scrambling to buy high grade bonds.

Super savings in the government bond market as banks sought employment for the funds released by the reduction in excess reserve requirements was evidence enough of their dilemma. But there was more to it than that. The banks which were gobbled up the offering of the $500,000,000 Consolidated Loan, a share not now pressed they really are to find acceptable investments. And now Secretary Morgenthau has made known the Treasury's intention to refund half of the weekly bill maturities of $100,000,000 with the funds advanced by the government. This means banks will gain deposits at a like rate and the Treasury will have the money represented by such sales will be "new". In other words, the Treasury will be using the funds for the refunding of bonds, which will be used for the refunding of bonds, which will be used for the refunding of bonds.

The first result of the Treasury's plan to refund bonds is likely to be a scramble for high grade bonds. In fact, it looks as if the Treasury will be using the funds for the refunding of bonds, which will be used for the refunding of bonds, which will be used for the refunding of bonds.

After much early year talk about the rail problem and legislation to ease it, enthusiasm seems faded and it looks as if the Treasury will be using the funds for the refunding of bonds, which will be used for the refunding of bonds, which will be used for the refunding of bonds.

Whether, after conferences with rail management and labor, has indicated an emergency program will be pressed. There is still a lack of confidence in the government's plan to refund bonds, which will be used for the refunding of bonds, which will be used for the refunding of bonds.

To Get Control Day's Top Levels

Of Me. Central

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Representative Oliver (D-Me.) said today he had introduced a program to "rehabilitate" the Port of Portland, Me., by giving control of the Maine Central Railroad to Maine interests.

Oliver had been conferring with Representative Finance Committee officials in an effort to determine if the government would loan a Maine corporation funds to get the control of the Maine Central Railroad back in its own hands.

The turnover was ahead of the preceding session. Brokers attributed the improvement partly to a better feeling about the Maine Central, and the fact that the market was a little better than it had been.

Profits selling occasionally slipped down today, but after a few minutes of trading, the market was again on the rise. The closing was at a level of 100 1/2.

The path of thrighteous is as the dawning light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day.—Proverbs IV, 18.
The text for today is suggested by a Rev. Dr. Harold Major, First Baptist Church, Boston. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, Dudley Street Baptist Church, Boston.

The Editor Says:

EVERYTHING that King Midas of old touched turned to gold.

Everything the New Deal leaders touch turns to TAXES—AND DEBT.

The whole burden of President Roosevelt's recent message to Congress and his radio Fireside Chat the same day, divested of all rhetoric, is that we are to be TAXED STILL MORE and that the national debt has only the sky for the limit—and there is NO CEILING EITHER TO SKY OR DEBT.

In his radio "chat" the President said in giving us the hope of an increased national income:

"Let us not forget that government expenditures will go down and GOVERNMENT TAX RECEIPTS WILL GO UP."

But under the New Deal, as national income has risen the national debt also has kept rising.

THE NATIONAL INCOME is now in the neighborhood of $60,000,000,000. The national debt is in the neighborhood of $40,000,000,000.

So what guarantee have the American people that when the national income reaches President Roosevelt's objective of $80,000,000,000 the national debt will not be $60,000,000,000?

NONE WHATEVER!

That the Administration's mind is set on ADDITIONAL TAXES, and not on a balanced budget, is revealed again in a letter which the President sent to Senator Pat Harrison and Representative Doughton:

"The Treasury stands to lose where the corporation does not distribute earnings, whereas if earnings were distributed the Treasury would collect ADDITIONAL TAXES on the personal income tax returns of the stockholders."

Still hating on TAXES!

THE WHOLE PROGRAM of the Administration after five years of quack experiments is:

MORE INCOME FOR MORE TAXES.
MORE TAXES FOR MORE SPENDING.
MORE SPENDING FOR MORE VOTES.
MORE VOTES FOR MORE EXPERIMENTS.

This isn't "planning."
This isn't statesmanship.

It is PSYCHOPATHIC GOVERNMENT.

It is sailing the Ship of State on a stormy sea without rudder or compass, burdened with a super-cargo of DEBTS and TAXES, and manned by a CREW OF IMPRACTICAL PROFESSORS.

OUR BROTHERHOOD DAY

"Catholics, Protestants and Jews will assemble in Faneuil Hall Tuesday evening to observe Brotherhood Day."

Brotherhood Day, a union of all creeds to defend religion against the worldwide attack of atheism and paganism, appeals powerfully to all right-thinking persons.

They realize, as Mr. Hearst observed in a recent editorial, that our civilization will stand or fall with the acceptance or rejection of the true principles of faith and morality.

They have seen the horrible persecutions in Nazi Germany.

They have witnessed the banishment of God in Soviet Russia.

And they are determined that what has happened in those unfortunate nations WILL NOT HAPPEN IN AMERICA.

Tuesday's meeting, in Faneuil Hall, historic cradle of our American liberty, will be an event of world interest.

It will be proof that we appreciate the intolerance and the freedom that have made us great in the past.

It will be a proclamation to all men and to all races that our belief in democracy is real—so real that we stand ready, as did the builders of Faneuil Hall, to defend it.

YOU MAY BE WEALTHY!

"MILLBURY—Forgotten since Colonial days, a worthy first edition of John Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress'—worth more than $4000—was discovered in the public library cellar here by a WPA bookworm."—News Item.

This item, buried in the news among more spectacular events, concerns all New Englanders, particularly New Englanders who live in old houses.

Many first editions and other treasures will be found in our cellars and attics if we but take the time to look for them.

Yesterday, on this page, Edwin C. Hill told about a Swedish gentleman who found a Shakespeare folio in his home. It was worth $10,000. Henry Clay Folger bought it for that sum. And today, in the Washington Shakespearean Library, it is regarded as priceless.

Of course, we cannot all find Shakespeare folios. But there is an abundance of buried treasure in our New England homes—period furniture, old pamphlets, manuscripts, early newspapers, oil paintings and engravings.

So why not organize a "gold hunt" today? Why not look for the things museums and collectors pay handsomely to obtain?

Ignorance is NOT bliss so long as treasures which might produce welcome money collect dust in the forgotten corners of our homes.

Better Prime This Pump!

By Nelson Harding

The pump that needs to be primed is the PUMP OF CONFIDENCE.

Unemployment, which is the Federal Government's biggest problem, cannot be solved by Federal spending.

It can be solved ONLY by re-employment in producing industries—but producing industries cannot forge ahead when confidence is lacking all through the business structure of the nation.

The one recovery measure which the Federal Government can effectively take is to remove the shackles and the restriction on industry which Government itself has imposed.

Managing Editor William C. Wren, of the San Francisco Examiner, adds to the saga of "Racetrack" Brownie to whom he refers as "Motion Picture" Brown.

"Our Brown," he writes, "had a great store of barroom ballads which he often recited in the Tanqueray press box."

His tone boomed out over the race track with such force as to turn thousands of faces upward from the grandstand. He was a veritable Slinger.

"His last dive found him as usual, broke. He was in no danger of starving because he was on the track's payroll, and all the newspapermen were easy touches for Brownie."

He waited until after the last race on the last day of the season and then, from a deserted press box, he leaped into a deserted grandstand. I do not know whether he had ever been a member of the Lambs' Club, but it may well be that the final dependency of this old trouper was due to the fact that at that moment he confronted an empty house.

One of the last of the city's life-saving stations rests snugly where Corleone brings straggling South street to an end. Here there is a sea-wall for the weary and the river lovers.

Usually one or two dull-gray Navy sea-dogs sprawl coils in the water. Across the river in the Brooklyn Navy Yard and daily there is the miracle of long strings of freight cars floating by. You have to look twice to see the low-flat barges which support them.

Bridfests: Name to excite the fancy—Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte.

Rarely see Commentator Edwin C. Hill in the night spots, but frequently encounter him in Dempsey's after one of the major duels at Madison Square Garden.

Or, as George Wells, guiding genius of the Mercury Theater group, the town's white-haired boy this season, conveys the impression of being a college junior absent from studies without leave.

No one writes more vivid prose than Elsie Robinson when describing a crime or an execution.

Miss Robinson, who swoons when a picture draws blood, can picture a murder like this: "His weak young hands clutched frantically at her old ones."

clutched, desperately, down and away from the stabbing blade—until some one fell."

allobbered and choked and gurgled and then lay still, with a thick, gummy crimson oozing from his throat."

An imposing business structure now rises from the Fifth Avenue site which once held the dinky little home of the fabulously wealthy, hermit-like Wendell sisters and a wisp of a legend reaches us that every so often, in the late hours before midnight, the whine of a loud beater distinctly, seeming to come from somewhere in the sky window.

The sisters had a dog but it passed on long before their death. The store in the building retains low-priced wares—but no live stock. One theory is that the wind hitting across the corner of the building produces the eerie wall.

It's spring—that treacherous month when the defiant bachelor who has opted for a life of celibacy is all fed up with women.

He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women.

He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women.

He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women. He is fed up with women.

WHAT couldn't Dexter Fellows have done with that 450-pound circus gorilla, Gargantua, who uses a big truck tire for a teething ring?

Or the late Arthur Brisbane, citing the dominance of brain over brawn, in our somnolent life drama, Damsel, might have sketched him into the life scheme.

And then again, more seriously and pointedly perhaps, he puts us into our long biological context. It does no harm for an upcity, New Englander to have old Uncle Zeke from Whifflefree Corners living with them.

The moving pictures have been guilty of some monstrous perversion and wretched taste in filming books, and frequently the film and the book have only the title in common. But, from where we sit, this ruling of the Federal Trade Commission that the film must present an "accurate version" of the book looks pretty dubious.

From the merely legalistic point of view, "accurate version" is a desert of legal quicksands. From the broader, human point of view, censorship is always dangerous. It imposes no restraints that are not imposed in the long run by the free exercise of public judgment and taste.

More baldly and brutally, the more human concerns the bureaucrats keep out of the better.

The moving pictures have come on up through a lot of banality and hokum to the status of a magnificent new art. They can't take the final hurdle dragging an Oregon boat of censorship.

If the above ruling is defensible, it should apply to the legitimate stage as well. And take one of the most successful plays at random and note the magnificent effects obtained by libbing the historic text discreetly without doing violence to the play.

I refer to the current "Julius Caesar." Young Orson Welles, the Boy wonder director, breaks up the "Friends, Romans, countrymen," speech with crowd injections, which pace the line and even a marvelous plot.

Any person who ever heard a high school orator or a ham actor mouthing that famous line will be grateful for the intelligent variation of the traditional rendering. Yet, with the foregoing ruling applied, any bureaucratic pipework could stop in and close the show. That wouldn't be an "accurate version" of Shakespeare.

The drama, stage or screen, requires wide latitude in sustaining pace, building suspense and attaining climax. It would be utterly impossible to take any novel in the world and make a worth while play out of it by literal adherence to the text under any possible legal definition of accuracy.

And surely, if the movie producers want to Bowdlerize or hamstring or otherwise pervert literature they ought to be allowed to pick this means of losing their money.

The "Life of Emilio Zeila, cleaned up, because it was an effective and essentially accurate film, in spite of a heavy and strict there and there to meet film requirements. And I have not heard of any stupid distortion of historic fact or literature which ever hung up any box office records.

Public taste and intelligence is a better referee than the Federal Trade Commission or any other government body.

The Political Parade

WASHINGTON, April 22. VICE-PRESIDENT GARNER has reached the point in his distinguished career where he owes it to the American people to be absolutely plain and frank with them.

No man in Congress could speak with more authority at this moment of crisis, as the nation hangs poised above the abyss of more reckless spending.

In no man in public life today is silence less exorable.

Mr. Garner possesses the respect of his country and of his party.

The people and the politicians alike would listen to him.

It is not enough for the Vice-President to oppose the new spending program behind the scenes and in the privacy of Senate cloakrooms.

If Mr. Garner believes there is danger to this country in the new heading rush into debt, he should be widely believed in Washington, and he been widely published.

It is his duty to make his position unmistakably clear.

A statement from the Vice-President at this time, that he cannot believe in the wisdom of this spending of another four or five billion of borrowed money, might swing enough votes in House and Senate to defeat this raid on posterity.

Mr. Garner possesses great influence at both ends of the Capitol.

He is responsible for Mr. Rayburn being the Democratic leader of the House, and for Mr. Jesse Jones being on RFC.

It is not enough for Mr. Garner merely to oppose this vast spending in the academic enclaves of the Senate.

He knows how to make his influence felt at the House.

If Mr. Rayburn now continues to support this campaign scheme to add another tax load to the burden already borne, if he stands on the floor and fights for it, he has fought for the Reorganization Bill, the public will have justification for believing that Mr. Garner isn't enough opposed to this reckless spending to make his opposition effective.

The inclusion of the Vice-President among the members of a President's cabinet was a perilous departure from sound American tradition.

It was begun by the long-thinking Harding, and continued by his successors.

The Vice-President was designed by the Constitution to be the President of the Senate—a part of the legislative branch of government.

At no time in its history has it been called to higher station by some contemplated emergency.

Never was the mistake of drawing the Vice-President into an integral relationship with the Executive branch of government made today.

If Mr. Garner folds his hands and acquiesces in consequence of this relationship, as a part of the Roosevelt Administration, which constitutionally he is not, it is little less than a betrayal. He should free himself, to speak boldly.

And he should speak. This country would listen with close attention.

Unauthorized newspaper stories are not sufficient.

March of Events

I HAVE always had a profound admiration for and fellow feeling with those who have loved nature passionately and mystically—Thoreau, John Burroughs, Audubon, Walt Whitman and John Muir, for instance.

One hundred years ago today John Muir was born. His living monuments are the Muir Glacier, in Alaska, and the Yosemite National Park.

Of Muir it may be said what old John Burroughs said of himself:

"I am in love with this world. I have climbed its mountains, roamed its forests, stilled its waters, crossed its deserts, felt the sting of its frosts, the oppressions of its heat, the drench of its rains, the fury of its winds, and always have beauty and joy waited upon my goings and comings."

To Muir, as to Burroughs and Thoreau, nature is a semi-transparent veil through which one feels an invisible presence.

"Puppy love!"

That is the way the tragic affair of Young Carroll and his sweetheart has been almost contemptuously labeled in the newspapers.

A boy of 16 and a girl of 16 are not puppies or kittens.

First love, the love of boys and girls in their teens, is sometimes more piercing, more supple and leaves deeper marks on the emotional nature than the loves of mature persons.

The first arrows of Cupid buried deep in young hearts and flesh leave wounds that never heal.

A committee of public affairs—that sinister phrase is again heard in France.

Leon Archimbaud, Radical Socialist deputy, says: "Let us regain the mentality of the men of 1792."

Henri de Kerillis, a Rightist deputy, says that "France must appoint a director of police safety."

The Committee of Public Safety during the French revolution was with the Jacobin Club, the sponsor of the reign of terror.

Under the excuse that the "public safety"
